

Rize ETF chooses Foxberry as index provider for range of new thematic ETFs

Press release

London, 17 February 2020: Rize ETF (“Rize”), Europe’s first specialist thematic ETF issuer, has chosen the London based index provider Foxberry Ltd (“Foxberry”) as its index provider for its new suite of thematic ETFs.

Rize today lists its Rize Cybersecurity and Data Privacy UCITS ETF (ticker: CYBR) and Rize Medical Cannabis and Life Sciences UCITS ETF (ticker: FLWR) on the London Stock Exchange, both of which track purpose-built indices from Foxberry.

“There is a growing belief among investors that the traditional asset management sector is out of touch and behind the curve”, commented Rahul Bhushan, Co-Founder of Rize ETF. “We want to democratize access to emerging and disruptive themes, giving modern-day investors early exposure to global developments that are relatable and meaningful to them.”

Jason Kennard, Co-Founder of Rize ETF added: “We have chosen Foxberry to help us develop new and ground-breaking indices. Not only do they have an exceptionally advanced indexing platform, but they have positioned themselves as a great partner as we think about the next wave of thematics.”

Henrik Brunlid, CEO of Foxberry commented: “Thematic investing is continuing to grow, and these are investment themes which require purpose-built investment strategies that can stand the test of time. We are excited to be working with Rize ETF to enable their new thematic offerings.”
